GZA's staff provides solutions to help clients succeed regardless of the size or complexity of their challenges.

GZA is immersed in the details of planning, siting, permitting, designing, building, upgrading, dismantling, and redeveloping energy facilities. Our clients are well-served by GZA's keen grasp of the regulatory environment and issues impacting the sector – including decarbonization, regional reliability, resilience, and beneficial re-use. The firm has provided multi-disciplinary engineering services to energy sector clients since 1964.

Clients trust the people of GZA because of our core values of honesty, integrity and our commitment to excellence.

GZA is a faithful client advocate, shepherding countless power and oil and gas projects from planning through completion with technical proficiency and an unparalleled level of service. Facility owners and the developers, engineers, contractors, and attorneys who serve them consider us a trusted partner, often establishing decades-long working relationships with GZA.

RESULTS ORIENTED

GZA helps reduce risks and strives to deliver the best possible value for clients by employing a thorough and thoughtful analysis of each project through its entire lifecycle.

With in-house environmental, geotechnical, ecological, water, and construction management services, GZA is engaged in all facets of the energy sector's growth: supporting construction of renewable energy sources as well as new construction and system-wide rebuilds of the nation's bulk electric grid, analysis and reinforcement of infrastructure to withstand increasing natural and man-made threats, and redeveloping former energy properties from high-risk liabilities to commercially-productive and community-valued assets.
